

Accounting Express steams into Scotland

Date: March 2010 FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Dumfries and Galloway businessman Sam Sherwin has become Scotland's first franchise holder for Accounting Express, a new low-cost outsourced accountancy service devised to help small businesses balance their books.

The South West Scotland based franchise which covers areas such as Annan, Dumfries, Kirkcudbright and Stranraer, will provide accountancy support services to business owners using a powerful but easy-to-use online accounts and reporting system that enables them to make significant savings on their accountancy costs and take control of their business.

Sam comments "Accounting Express is specifically geared towards providing accounting services with the clients business in mind. We [Accounting Express] make it as straight forward as possible by using the latest systems and technology and giving our clients access, through the web portal, to meaningful monthly accounting information."

Away from delivering a professional accountancy service you'll find Sam out and about on his mountain bike in his free time. "I relocated to Dumfries and Galloway because of the beautiful countryside, and the access and availability of outdoor pursuit activities for me and my family which are on the doorstep. Plus it's a great place to live and work! By providing the Accounting Express service to local businesses, I hope other business owners will be able to achieve the same work / life balance that I'm able enjoy."

The Accounting Express solution was devised by Cheshire company Sollertia Ltd which was launched by highly experienced Chartered Management Accountant Andrew Mault.

"We are delighted that Sam has become our second Accounting Express franchisee. He's ideally positioned, through knowledge and experience, to offer accounting services to small / medium sized businesses. He developed and established his own business in the leisure industry and operated for 14 years before selling up and relocating. Through his years of experience of running his own business, he will be able to provide other businesses with sound expert advice and support as well as providing essential accountancy services for them."

"We know that Sam will deliver a highly professional service to clients in South West Scotland who can rest assured that he has the full support of the Accounting Express team."

- Story ends -

Accounting Express was devised in 2007 and provides accountancy and bookkeeping support services to small businesses from start-ups to £1m turnover in the UK. It's backed by a powerful but simple to use online accounts and reporting system.
