

It's not all doom and gloom!

DAVE Watts MP has praised a company which is making money despite the recession, by helping businesses across the country manage their accounts while saving cash.

The St Helens North MP visited Sollertia Ltd in Newton-le-Willows saying: "There is still good news out there despite the recession. It's not all doom and gloom because we still have people making money."

Managing director Andrew Mault, an expert in management accountancy explained to Mr

'There is still good news out there despite the recession'

Watts, Mr Watts stressed the importance of financial advice, especially to smaller businesses struggling in the current economic climate.

Sollertia's clients are small to medium sized businesses with an annual turnover of between £1m and £20m.

Mr Mault said he believed that franchise opportunities could also provide a route back into employment for accountancy or banking professionals who have fallen victim to the recession.

Watts how he developed a model, which allows companies to have instant access to their financial information without the cost of an in house finance department.

Although certain industries have been more affected than others during the reces-

St Helens

Star

News desk: 762766

Advertising: 751441

sthelensstar.co.uk

Thursday, August 13, 2009

25p